

Stephen Bulger Gallery

Artistic Flair

These two galleries offer modern spaces for cocktail receptions, product launches, and fashion shows.

Founded in 1994, the Stephen Bulger Gallery (1026 Queen St. West, 416.504.0575) recently expanded to include Camera, a private screening room and bar that seats 50. The venue hosts free Saturday afternoon film screenings and is available for private parties. The combined spaces can accommodate 140 for receptions.

Twist Gallery

Twist Gallery (1100 Queen St. West, 416.588.2222) opened in February in the spot formerly known as Spin Gallery. The 5,000-square-foot loft space features skylights, arched windows, and long wooden beams accentuating the venue's high ceilings. The gallery holds 350 for private events and is equipped with a prep room for catering.

Dolce Social Ballroom

Pop Nightclub

New Nightspots

Invite a group for drinks and dancing at these new lounges.

Nightclub owner Travis Agresti unveiled his latest venture—Dolce Social Ballroom (647 King St. West, 416.361.9111)—in November. The 6,000-square-foot space at King and Bathurst holds 560 and has custom origami chandeliers, a handcrafted brass ceiling, and wall treatments designed by local artist Zac Ridgely. A backlit onyx platform surrounding the private booths doubles as a catwalk. A 280-seat patio is expected to open this summer.

In February Moses Sabatino opened Pop Nightclub (217 Richmond St. West, 416.593.6116), a dance club and lounge with a retro vibe, in the Richmond Street West space formerly occupied by Fluid. The main room, which houses the dance floor, features two bars, red leather booths, and Andy Warhol prints lining the wall. The adjoining room has cream furnishings and carpeting in a sunken V.I.P. space. The venue holds 700.

GAME ON

Take teambuilding to these recently renovated bowling alleys.

The Shamrock Bowl (280 Coxwell Ave., 416.406.2695) is a retro 12-lane bowling alley in a century-old building on Coxwell Avenue. The space, which reopened in early October following extensive renovations, is available for events and can hold 135. On-site catering is available, and custom bowling shirts can be ordered in advance.

In November, the owners of All Star Interactive (2791 Eglinton Ave. East, 416.261.5011), a bowling alley in the east end, opened the Danforth Suite, a 2,000-square-foot event venue equipped with 12 bowling lanes. The second-floor space has a lounge area with a bar, Wi-Fi Internet access, and TVs for visual presentations. The venue can hold 130 or seat 80, and catering is available.
